

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSRE

A method for fabricating a smaller-sized glass rod by elongation of a glass matrix comprises providing a glass matrix, applying steam to surfaces of said glass matrix, and heating the thus applied glass matrix to soften the glass matrix to an extent sufficient for subsequent elongation. The softened glass matrix is elongated to provide a glass rod having a substantially dirt-free, clean surface.